

Screening instrumental evaluation in Baroque Choir

O. Calcinoni , S. Capobianco

Baroque singing did not receive in scientific literature the same attention paid to Belcanto and Classical singing styles. The Authors present an other view regarding the approach to this singing style in its phoniatic and technical peculiarities, discussing observations in a small professional population, specialized in Baroque, and also some case reports.